about his new book

True: The Four Seasons of Jackie Robinson

Sunday, October 16th, at 4 pm

(wine and cheese reception at 3:30)

Tied to the 50th anniversary of Jackie Robinson's death and the 75th anniversary of his professional baseball debut, True is a probing, richly detailed biography of this baseball and civil rights icon. Bestselling author Kostya Kennedy—an editorial director at Dotdash Meredith and former senior writer and assistant managing editor at Sports Illustrated—focuses the book on four transformative years in Robinson's athletic and public life.

Kennedy brings literary grace to his subject, illuminating Robinson's sizzling style on the ballfield, his colossal significance in American culture, and his complex humanity. - The Washington Post

The program will be held at the Larchmont Village Center. Reception on the library lawn, weather permitting. Free and open to the public.
